

I'm not for this. What's the point of buying into a new product if you can't actually own it? Perhaps the over-the-air networks should consider going wholly cable or something...